Rev. J. P. Dingle Gets a Position

The Rev. J. P. Dingle, who has been added to the staff of the Bishop Pinkham College, is a teacher of considerable experience and much success in the Old Country, having held assistant masterhips at King Edward's school, Grantham; Brigg Grammar school, the Oxford High School for boys, and Brighton College, one of the best known smaller public schools of England. Educated at Tavistock Grammar school, Devonport High school and Pembroke College, Oxford, he has been steadily engaged in parochial duties since coming to Alberta three years ago. During this time he has had charge of churches at High River, Brooks, Bassano, Crossfield and Cochrane, in all of which places he has won the respect and esteem of the whole community, and it will be a source of satisfaction to many people in the country districts to know that it has been made possible for him to continue his Sunday ministrations in parishes where otherwise it would be impossible for service to be held, owing to the dearth of clergy in the diocese.

Sunday School Picnic

A delightful day! a most enjoyable time! This was the unanimous verdict of those who took part in the Anglican Sunday School Picnic on Saturday last, when fifty-six Crossfieldites, young and middle-aged, made merry in Mr. Ross Peacock's coolies, some 2½ miles north of town. A start was made from the church at 2.30 p.m., the following gentlemen kindly supplying automobiles for the conveyance of the children and their friends:—Messrs. Bray, Peacock, McLeod and Dr. Williams. In addition to this Mr. Mossop came to the rescue with an attractively decorated drag, so that all who desired were conveyed to the scene of the picnic without delay.

On arrival, a number of handsome prizes were competed for in various ways, and then came the tea interval when ample justice was done to the good things provided by the ladies, Mrs. Stevens' soft drinks in particular being in constant demand.

The older members of the party having expressed a preference for the cup that cheers, Constable Norcott gallantly came to the rescue, built a fire on the prairie with consummate skill, and was unceasing in his efforts to keep up a regular supply of boiling water. Thank you, sir!

This tea supper having been disposed of, games became the order of the day. Under the capable leadership of Mrs. Edwards and Miss Wicks, the juniors had a right merry time, and it was with much regret that the little gathering broke up at six o'clock, the hope being freely expressed that this might prove to be but the first of many similar outings in the days to come. The thanks of the Sunday School are due to all who contributed in any way to the success of the picnic, and especially to the ladies who furnished in such abundance the necessary creature comforts, and to the Rev. J. P. and Mrs. Dingle for organising such a successful outing.

An Open Letter To the Women of Canada Concerning the Need For Fighting Men

Just over a year ago the thunderbolt of war fell upon us out of a clear sky.
After the first moment of surprise and confusion had passed, we asked, "How can we help?"

During the year that has passed, that question has found many answers. The trained nurse, the proved her value.
Other women were called upon to organize and direct Red Cross and St. John Ambulance work and Patriotic Societies, while all gave time or money or personal service in preparing supplies and food for the front. To comparatively few came the need for the supreme sacrifice—the sending forth of husband, son or brother to the fight. The first appeal for volunteers was limited and did not appear very urgent.
All honour to those who heard and obeyed the earliest call of Empire and whose women sent them forth with pride to fight in the front rank of the Canadian forces.
To-day the situation has changed. We have heard, after a year's war, that our task is harder, our danger more real, than we thought a year ago. We have "give-up," and now we must call it "give-up," and service must fill itself in sacrifice. Most urgent of all to-day is the call to give up husbands, sons and brothers. We are called to create in our homes such an atmosphere of self devotion that our men and boys may feel their resolution to offer themselves in their country's service is what is expected of them.

This does not mean that women should be constantly urging their men to enlist, for it is doubtful if the patriotic perserence of a wife or mother would produce anything but a reluctant and resentful recruit. The men in Canada have not seen themselves less patriotic than their women, but it is for the women of Canada to ask themselves whether their self-sacrifice is falling short of the supreme test.

Are we making it hard or easy for our men to obey their country's call to service?
Why is the call so urgent now?
The answer is simple: it is because our existence as an Empire is at stake.

We went into the war to keep our sovereign pledge to our allies; and this reason still holds good.

But there are now other reasons which did not exist a year ago. Belgium with her ravaged land and exiled people cries aloud for justice. What do Canadian women say to the appeal of her outraged women and mutilated children? They have suffered for us: what are we willing to suffer for them?

The women of France and Russia and the United Kingdom have long ago heard the appeal to give up their men, and have responded nobly. What will Canadian women do?

Beyond the keeping of our pledged word, the word of Belgium, and the example of our allies, there comes to us the knowledge that we are called on to fight our own battle; not to send help to Belgium or France or even England, but to fight for our own national existence.
We are told by the men who know that we cannot win in this war without more men.

If we hold back the men we are courting defeat, and defeat means, not a vague misfortune to the Empire at large, but very practical results of a Canada governed by Germans.

Do we want to know what that would mean? Then let us look at Belgium, and learn how the yoke of the conqueror galls the neck of a freedom-loving people.
Defeat would mean for us a period of bitterness and shame and discontent, and then—another war. Can we risk it?
We are risking it if we do not make the path of service easy for the men.

But the most compelling call for sacrifice rings out from the graves of those who on the fields of Flanders, at Langemark and Ypres, and Festubert, have blazed the trail to glory with their life blood.

Can we make their self-surrender of no avail by holding back the men who would take up and complete their splendid task?

There is a saving which is losing: is it worth "saving" our men if we lose the respect? There is a loss which is gain: is it worth "losing" our men if we lose the sympathy of the whole great world's anguish, forced through the channels of a single heart."

We are called to scale the gleaming peak of self-sacrifice, in the company of our brave sisters of the Allied nations.
What will the women of Canada do?

Some Towns in France Growing Used to Shot and Shell

There are several towns in France where the inhabitants have grown so accustomed to being bombarded that they eat, drink, sleep and go about their daily tasks under a continual roar of cannon and bursting shells. There are Rheims, Pont-a-Mousson and Arras, for example, whose populations have had but few days' respite for months past.

"The last time I passed Arras in the train on the journey to Boulogne," says a correspondent, "shells could be seen and heard bursting close by, and though this was some time ago the German spite against this unfortunate town does not seem to have abated a jot. The German lines are just half a mile away. And for eight months they have shown a fiendish delight in showering shells of every calibre upon the town, until whole quarters have been reduced to ruins."

"The massively built cathedral is hardly recognizable, and the railway station is a pile of masonry material.
There is scarcely a house intact in the place."

"One would have thought that the inhabitants would have long since quitted the inferno. When the bombardment began there were perhaps 25,000 inhabitants. About 2,000 have stoutly stuck to their native place, and refused to quit what is left of, or represents, their homes."

"A strange and admirable institution in Arras is the 'Coffin League.' When the bombardments began the victims were so numerous that it was not possible to give each a separate burial. On one occasion 150 bodies had to be incinerated at a street corner. This tragic spectacle so impressed the people that a coffin league was started, and its members work almost all day and night in cellars making coffins for the inferno."

"Fires are frequent, especially lately, since the Germans have taken to delivering incendiary shells upon Arras. A story is told of how on one occasion, the prefect, the mayor, the bishop's vicar and the vice-president of the prefectural council, together with the bishop himself, were all seen together working the pumps under a heavy fire. At any rate Arras presents an extraordinary instance of courage and love of the native soil. The inhabitants evidently prefer to be buried beneath the ruins of their birthplace to giving way to the brutal and senseless terrorism of the futile bombardment."
